65 viktor tanin on conclusion of winter session of nato's executive bodies: four years ago usa imposed on its allies plan for so-called supplementary armaments. since then washington has methodically steered course for implementation of plan. geneva talks on limiting nuclear weapons in europe were merely smokescreen. obviously u.s. missiles deployed in several west european countries will increase threat to ussr and its allies, but at same time they sharply increase nuclear threat to those countries that accept to have such missiles sited on their territory, making them targets for immediate retaliatory strike.
